

Aerial Interdiction - Air Power and the Land Battle in Three American Wars

This work examines the practice of air interdiction in three wars: World War II, the Korean War, and the war in Southeast Asia or Vietnam War. It considers eleven important interdiction campaigns, all of them American or Anglo-American, for only the United States and Great Britain had the resources to conduct interdiction campaigns on a large scale in World War II. Mark proposes a realistic objective for interdiction preventing men, equipment and supplies from reaching the combat area when the enemy needs them and in the quantity he requires. Center for Air Force History, Washington, D.C.
