

Coos Texts (Forgotten Books)

This is a short collection of texts from the Coos people of Oregon, collected by anthropologists a century ago. This includes origin myths and lore about what lies beyond the sky and death, tales of people who marry anthropomorphic animals, and legends about natural disasters such as floods and fires. Like other unedited, unfiltered native American texts, they possess earthy humor and a dreamlike, cyclic narrative structure. (Quote from sacred-texts.com) About the Author Leo Joachim Frachtenberg (1883 - 1930) Frachtenberg, Leo Joachim (1883-1930) was an anthropologist who studied the Native American languages. He received his PhD from Columbia University in 1910 under Franz Boas on the Coosan language of Oregon. Other languages he worked on included Chimakuan, Shasta and Penutian. Like Boas and his contemporary Edward Sapir, he was Jewish. He seems to have worked for the Bureau of Ethnology.
