

West from Uruk

A trip through time and US history. So proclaimed the ad in a bus station window. Nod, a history student, and Roja, a would-be computer whiz, bit at the ad. They were two nerds, brother and sister in effect, seeking diversion in visiting historical spots in Eastern US. Four others, including the driver, a soldier, a linguist and a botanist, joined them. But NYC, Philly and D.C. were not what they found. Instead, they wound up in the cradle of civilization--Uruk of Sumer--where they faced daggers as their driver was whisked away. History, time travel and danger when all they signed up for was a leisurely bus tour. The future had begun in the past. Thanks to Nods bumbling leadership, the day ended okay, at a feast with the king of Uruk. But there were six days and six other places to go, ending in San Francisco in 2042. At each historical stop they met characters and took part in events which somehow pointed forward to our rather bipolar country...with its mixture of greed and generosity, destruction and dreams, war and creativity. In the process relationships developed as they began to realize they might have a part to play in the nations progress. West from Uruk is the book to read for those who like adventure and humor mixed with their history, politics and patriotism. Old ideas for a renewed country!
