

Brother Soldier / On The Home Front

Rare insightful glimpses into the New Jersey's Star Ledger's News Blog named NJ.COM. A forum on news articles concerning Politics and the lives of ordinary New Jersey citizens as seen through the blog comments of one of their own, Brother Soldier. This is it! Reality tv in print! This is real life and its true that reality can be so much weirder than fiction. These are the real life stories and events that make the news, from gang murders to murders stemming from the passions of love. From political debates to political corruptions. From the arrests of drug dealers to the arrests of lawyers. From the arrests of priests, to the arrests of judges, from car jackings to kidnappings. All of the news that reported is printed and discussed on newspaper blogs from coast to coast; and its on these blogs that the opinions of the general public are revealed. Brother Soldier is the voice of reason that is found among the racists and other life fanatics that comment on these blogs. He offers uncommon solutions of thought to complex problems of real life and this book is well worth the reading for the insight that can be attained. Ben Pasley A book of practical advice and thoughtful comments, some humorous, some angry, some sad but all served with a generous helping of uncommon sense, makes for great reading. Each post just gets better and better, in a Will Rodgers type of way.

I wouldn't care if the Police Director was yellow with green spots, if he was doing the job of properly supervising his supervisors, whose job it is to supervise the men in the field, you wouldn't have murders almost next door to a Police precinct with Police arriving and departing on a constant basis, unless of course, the shooter was a Policeman. I mean the theory sounds absurd, but then again, they are shaking people down over there, maybe some body didnt want to pay.

Three Newark residents charged with kidnapping, robbery outside check cashing store: posted on March 26,2010,1:05AM Not A Kidnapping - Debt Collection She thought she wasnt going to have to pay her line of credit in her drug usage. If it was really a kidnapping, she wouldnt have been dropped off at home. She must be a good customer, thats obvious because no one wanted her dead, if they did, she would be dead. People who want to enjoy FREE drugs from their local Dealers are going to have to wait until the Government take it over.....

West African woman who ran human trafficking ring in Newark, East Orange to be sentenced: posted on September 20,2010,8:44AM During her trial, Afolabis lawyer argued prosecutors mistook a West African-style apprenticeship program as slavery.
