In 1710, the meeting-house was built--the congregation increased, and many were added to the church j so that there were no less than five hundred members at that time. David Rees was a member of this church. He was born in 1683, of very pious parents, and was converted to God when very young. His lively qualifications--his diligence, together with his anxious desire to be useful, induced his parents to spare no pains nor expense in his education. He was first under the tuition of that notable man, Samuel Jones, M. A., near Neath, Glamorganshire. Soon the news of his promising talents reached the metropolis, and he was cordially invited there, by some of the greatest men in London; and he was unanimously called to the pastoral office, by the Baptist church at Lime-House, London. He was ordained by Joseph Stennet and John Piggot, about the year 1709. He was the pastor of that church about forty years, and was very useful in the city, as well as to his countrymen in Wales. There was another assistant preacher in the church, of the name of William Davis, who was ordained over the church at Llantrisant. About this time, the debate about baptism was so Jiot, that both Baptist and Pedobaptist ministers thought it advisable to put a stop to it, by holding a friendly meeting together: which also they did, at Merthyr-Tydfil, in 1728. Several of the members of this church went to America; among whom was Reynold Howell. He lived near Carphily, Glamorganshire. Though he was not a minister, yet he was a man of great knowledge in spiritual things. Thomas Williams and Roger Davis, also were assistant preachers here at this time. Evan Edwards was an assistant preacher, a godly man of good savor. William Philips, an assistant ...
